(Capital Information)
Hyderabad : In a significant development, 47 underground cadres of the CPI (Maoist) surrendered before Telangana Police on Sunday, handing over 32 firearms and 515 rounds of ammunition.

Police officials said the surrendered group included members associated with the Dakshina Bastar Divisional Committee under the Dandakaranya Special Zonal Committee. Among the senior cadres who laid down arms were Hemla Aithu alias Vigya and Podium Lachu alias Manoj.

According to the police, the weapons surrendered include SLR, AK-47 and INSAS rifles, among others. Authorities described the development as a major boost to ongoing efforts to curb Left-Wing Extremism in the region.

B. Shivadhar Reddy, Director General of Police, Telangana, said the surrender reflects growing confidence in the government's rehabilitation policy. "This marks a decisive step towards peace and progress. We appeal to those still underground to choose the path of reform," he said.

Officials stated that all 47 cadres would be covered under the State's rehabilitation policy, which includes financial assistance, skill development and support for reintegration into mainstream society. The combined rehabilitation and reward package is estimated at around ₹1.5 crore.

The surrender is expected to weaken the operational capabilities of the Maoist network in the region, while reinforcing the State's efforts to promote peace and development.

Senior police officers were present during the surrender ceremony held in Hyderabad.

Telangana to expand 'Prajavani' to mandal level; CM sets strict timelines for grievance redressal

(Capital Information)
Hyderabad : A. Revanth Reddy on Sunday directed officials to expand the 'Prajavani' grievance redressal system to the grassroots, with services to be launched at the Revenue Division level and extended to mandals in the next phase.

At a review meeting held at the MCRHRD Institute, the Chief Minister instructed Chief Secretary K. Ramakrishna Rao and senior officials to decentralise the system to make grievance redressal more accessible, reducing the need for citizens to travel to Hyderabad or district headquarters.

Launched on December 8, 2023, the day he assumed office, Prajavani has been conducted twice a week at Praja Bhavan in Hyderabad, with similar programmes held at the district level under collectors. The initiative enables citizens to submit petitions directly to officials for prompt action.

Revanth Reddy emphasised that all complaints must be formally registered, routed to the concerned departments, and tracked through a unified digital platform. He called for real-time monitoring through dashboards at both district and State levels, ensuring applicants are informed about the status of their petitions.

The Chief Minister directed departments to set clear deadlines for resolving grievances and warned that delays would not be tolerated. "Officials will be held accountable for any lapse in addressing people's issues," he said.

He also ordered the appointment of nodal officers at every administrative level and the creation of dedicated Prajavani wings in departments and districts. An auto-escalation mechanism will be introduced to ensure unresolved complaints are automatically forwarded to higher officials, with provisions for appeals where necessary.

Regular review meetings will be conducted to monitor progress, with special focus on pending grievances. The Chief Minister said decentralising the system would ease the burden on State and district-level centres while improving efficiency.

"Prajavani must be implemented meticulously to build public confidence and trust in governance," he said, underscoring the government's commitment to responsive administration.

Centre plans space laboratories in universities to boost student engagement

(Capital Information)
New Delhi : Jitendra Singh on Sunday reviewed a proposal to establish dedicated space laboratories in universities and colleges across the country, aimed at strengthening hands-on learning and innovation in the space sector.

Officials said that in the first phase, seven such laboratories will be set up to provide students with practical exposure to areas such as satellite systems, rocketry and mission design.

The initiative comes amid rapid growth in India's space ecosystem, which has seen increasing private sector participation following policy reforms. Over the past five years, the sector has attracted more than $600 million in private investment.

Dr. Singh said the proposed laboratories would serve as hubs for nurturing innovation and developing a skilled workforce to meet the demands of the expanding space industry. He emphasised the importance of academic-industry collaboration in promoting indigenous technology and entrepreneurship.

The Minister directed officials to expedite the rollout of the first phase and ensure alignment of the programme with national space missions and private sector initiatives.

Officials noted that the move is expected to strengthen India's position in the global space domain by creating a pipeline of trained professionals and encouraging research-driven development in educational institutions.

Revanth Reddy completes self-enumeration for Census 2027, urges public participation

(Capital Information)
Hyderabad : A. Revanth Reddy on Sunday participated in the Census 2027 self-enumeration programme, completing the process by registering his details through the official online portal.

Officials from the Census Department briefed the Chief Minister on the procedure and significance of self-enumeration, emphasising its role in ensuring accurate and efficient data collection.

Calling for wider public participation, Revanth Reddy urged citizens across the State to make use of the digital facility. He said active involvement of households is essential for reliable data, which forms the basis for planning and development initiatives.

Senior officials present on the occasion included Bharati Holikeri, R. V. Karnan, Priyanka Ala and Chekka Priyanka, along with other officers from the Census and Information and Public Relations departments.

The State government has been encouraging citizens to adopt the self-enumeration facility to streamline the Census process and improve data accuracy.

Farmers, Rice Millers Must Move Forward with Unity : Minister Seethakka

(Capital Information)
Mulugu : State Minister Danasari Anasuya Seethakka on Sunday called for greater coordination and unity between farmers and rice millers to strengthen the agricultural economy.

She was speaking after inaugurating the new building of the Rice Millers Association at the Mulugu district headquarters. Addressing the gathering, the Minister highlighted the agricultural significance of Mulugu, noting that the district holds a prominent position in paddy production. She attributed this to the abundance of irrigation resources, including tanks and water bodies, which support farming activities.

Emphasising the close link between farmers and millers, Seethakka remarked that many millers come from farming backgrounds and therefore must understand and address farmers' concerns with fairness. She urged stakeholders to work collectively and strive for success in both agriculture and trade. The newly inaugurated association building, she said, should serve as a common platform for collaboration and progress.

Speaking on the occasion, Rice Millers Association President Badam Praveen pointed out that the milling industry is currently facing significant challenges. While the State Government is procuring paddy, he said, the pace of rice lifting has not kept up, placing a financial burden on millers.

He alleged that despite the State's efforts to protect farmers through procurement, the Centre has not been adequately supporting rice lifting. As a result, millers are forced to store large quantities of grain in private godowns, leading to weight loss and financial strain. He also expressed concern over high temperatures affecting the quality of stored produce.

Praveen further noted that limited allocation of boiled rice targets to the State has aggravated storage issues. He suggested that the government fix clear quotas for millers and store excess paddy in government warehouses to prevent defaults. He also mentioned delays in pending payments in the past, though recent releases of funds, facilitated by district officials, were a positive development.

Describing Mulugu millers as disciplined and exemplary in the State, he urged the government to take necessary measures to address their concerns, particularly by improving coordination between the Centre and the State to enhance rice lifting.

Member of Parliament Balram Naik and District Library Chairman Ravichander, among others, were present at the programme.

2,200 meals every morning: Chikkadpally's 21-year community kitchen sustains thousands

(Capital Information)

Hyderabad : In a quiet corner of Chikkadpally, a long-running community initiative has been serving free breakfast to more than 2,200 people every day for over 21 years, offering a dependable start to the day for students, workers, and the elderly.

Every morning along Ambedkar College Road (Street No. 10), beneficiaries gather for a simple meal of idlis, vada, a banana, and bread. For many, the service has become an essential support system, helping them begin their day with basic nourish-

What began in 2005 as a modest effort has grown into a sustained programme that has continued uninterrupted, regardless of season or circumstance. Residents say the initiative has had a tangible impact, particularly among school and college students from low-income families, enabling them to attend classes without hunger. Daily wage workers and elderly persons are also among the regular beneficiaries.

The initiative is driven by philanthropist Kanduri Krishna, along with his team members Pramod Kumar Agarwal, industrialist; Govind Rao, Public Prosecutor, Income Tax and Economic Offences Court; and Kanduri Koushik, Central Government Counsel, Advocate, High Court for the State of Telangana; Mudigonda Jwala Varalini, Advocate, Telangana High Court; and Dr. Sangeetha Hirakar, who have played a key role in sustaining the programme over the years.

Locals note that the initiative's consistency has been its defining strength, ensuring food security at the grassroots level without interruption. Over the years, it has evolved into an informal but vital welfare mechanism, complementing broader public support systems.

In a fast-paced urban setting, the Chikkadpally breakfast service continues quietly, providing not just meals but a measure of stability and reassurance to thousands who rely on it daily.

Self-Enumeration for Census 2027 Launched in Mahabubnagar

Public urged to ensure 100% participation in digital census process from April 26 to May 10

(Capital Information)
MAHABUBNAGAR : The Self-Enumeration (Self Enumeration) process under Census 2027 has been officially launched in Mahabubnagar district as part of the first phase of House Listing. Government Whip and local MLA Yennam Srinivas Reddy, along with District Collector Khushboo Gupta, formally inaugurated the program at the District Sports Stadium during the "Happy Sunday" event organized by the Municipal Corporation.

On the occasion, the MLA personally registered his details on the Census portal using a digital device, marking the beginning of the district-wide initiative. Addressing the gathering, Yennam Srinivas Reddy stated that the Census, which was due in 2021, had been delayed due to the COVID-19 pandemic and is now being undertaken jointly by the Central and State governments. He highlighted that for the first time, the Census is being conducted in a fully digital mode and called upon the public to actively participate in the Self-Enumeration process being conducted from April 26 to May 10. He emphasized that citizens can register their details independently through mobile phones, computers, or tablets and urged them to ensure accurate submission of information without errors.

The MLA noted that Mahabubnagar town has witnessed significant population growth over the past decade, with the population estimated to have reached around 3.5 lakh due to migration from nearby villages and other regions. He stressed that accurate population data is essential for planning infrastructure such as drinking water supply, drainage systems, roads, and parks, and for mobilizing appropriate funds. He added that the collected data will enable the government to implement welfare schemes and development programs effectively for all sections of society and requested citizens to cooperate with officials during field visits.

District Collector Khushboo Gupta expressed happiness in participating in the Happy Sunday program and reiterated that the Self-Enumeration process under Census 2027 has been initiated to enable citizens to register their details conveniently through the official portal. She stated that the Census will be conducted in two phases, with the first phase—House Listing and Housing Census—scheduled from April 1 to September 30, 2026, and the second phase, the actual population enumeration, to be conducted nationwide in February 2027. She explained that the Self-Enumeration facility is being provided 15 days prior to the commencement of the main census process, allowing citizens to enter responses to 33 questions related to housing and demographic details. The Collector urged youth and students to create awareness among the public about this initiative, noting that government welfare and development programs are based on this data.

She informed that the portal will be accessible daily from 6 AM to 12 midnight and that self-registration reduces errors and saves time. After submission, an SE ID will be generated, which should be saved and presented to the enumerator during verification visits to expedite the process. A live demonstration was conducted at the venue using a display screen to guide citizens step-by-step on how to complete the Self-Enumeration process online. Trainers Srikanth and Balu Yadav educated the public on the procedure.

The process involves logging into the official Census portal, selecting a preferred language, verifying mobile number through OTP, entering address details with geo-mapping, answering housing and demographic questions, and submitting the form to receive the SE ID. Citizens will be asked around 31 key questions covering housing conditions, family details, basic amenities, and household assets such as internet, smartphones, and vehicles.

Officials clarified that even after completing online registration, enumerators will visit households for physical verification, where citizens can simply provide their SE ID for confirmation. As part of the Happy Sunday event, children entertained the audience with dance performances, magic shows, and cultural activities.

The program was attended by Additional Collector (Revenue) J.L.B. HariPriya, Mayor Gummala Mamatha, Deputy Mayor Surender Reddy, MUDA Chairman Lakshman Yadav, Municipal Commissioner Ramanjula Reddy, District Planning Officer Ravinder, DPRO Srinivas, other officials, public representatives, and members of the Senior Citizens Forum.

tance of transparency and accountability in administration, and said that only through coordinated efforts among officials can better services be delivered to the public. He instructed officials to resolve public grievances promptly without any delay.

The Collector further stated that special focus would be given to key sectors such as agriculture, education, health-care, and infrastructure for the overall development of the district. He also stressed the importance of rural development, farmers' welfare, improving the quality of schools, and enhancing medical services.

He added that he would actively engage with the public to understand their issues and work towards effective solutions, aiming to make the district administration more accessible and people-centric.

Comprehensive Vajara Pahar operation in Tirupati

246 vehicles seized and 38 suspects detained

(Capital Information)

Tirupati : Prioritizing public safety under the 'Safe Tirupati' initiative, the Tirupati District Police conducted a massive dawn-to-dusk 'Cordon and Search' operation, titled Operation Vajra Pahar. Tirupati District SP L. Subbarayudu IPS personally led the operation on the ground, which saw a coordinated effort from 600 personnel across various departments, including Police, Excise, RTA, Eagle, Armed units, Dog Squad, and Revenue.

Targeting a crime-free society

District SP L. Subbarayudu IPS stated that the primary objective of Safe Tirupati is to provide absolute protection to common citizens and devotees while taking stringent action against those involved in anti-social activities. The operation was carried out si-

under Renigunta Police Station. The entire operation was monitored continuously using advanced drone surveillance.

Operation details and seizures

In Daminedu, officials gathered details of 8,000 residents across 3,000 households and seized 55 vehicles lacking proper documentation. In Tarakarama

Nagar, data was verified for 20,000 residents in 10,000 households, resulting in the seizure of 169 motorcycles and 22 autos. In total, 38 suspects were taken into custody to verify their criminal backgrounds.

Direct engagement with the public

During the operation, District SP L. Subbarayudu IPS interacted directly with residents to understand local security concerns. He emphasized that the goal is to weed out criminal elements living among the public without causing any inconvenience to law-abiding citizens. He further directed officials to maintain updated records of individuals living in rented accommodations.

Call for public cooperation

The District SP urged every citizen to contribute to making Tirupati a drug-free city. He encouraged individuals to act as "police without uniforms" by reporting suspicious activities. Citizens are advised to call Dial 112 for emergencies and 1972 to provide information regarding ganja or drug peddling. He assured that the identity of informants would be kept strictly confidential. District SP L. Subbarayudu IPS concluded by commending the officers and staff from various departments for their synchronized and effective execution of the operation.

Editorial Industry Welcomes India-New Zealand FTA Provisions on Pharma, Medical Devices

On the eve of the signing of the India-New Zealand Free Trade Agreement (FTA), Union Minister for Commerce and Industry, Piyush Goyal, and Mr. Todd McClay, Minister for Trade and Investment, New Zealand, participated in an Industry Engagement Programme at Agra. MoS of Fisheries, Animal Husbandry and Dairying S P Baghel, also participated in the interaction. The interaction brought together leading industry representatives from the leather and footwear, AYUSH, medical devices, light engineering, sports goods sectors and Laghu Udyog Bharati, Uttar Pradesh. The industry presented their views reflecting the depth and diversity of India's leather manufacturing prowess, Pharma industry, medical devices industry, engineering products. In keeping with Prime Minister Narendra Modi's vision of building trade partnerships that are inclusive, forward-looking, and firmly rooted in India's national priorities, both Ministers underscored that the India-New Zealand FTA is far more than a tariff agreement. It is a comprehensive framework encompassing market access, agricultural productivity, investment, talent mobility, collaboration in sports, tourism, and people-to-people ties, designed to benefit manufacturers, farmers, MSMEs, women entrepreneurs, students, and skilled professionals across both nations.

Agra, which accounts for approximately 75 per cent of India's leather footwear production, holds a Geographical Indication (GI) tag for its leather footwear and is a flagship product under the One District One Product scheme. With the FTA eliminating duties on 100 per cent of Indian exports from Entry into Force, and bringing tariffs on leather and footwear from 5 per cent to zero, Indian exporters are set to gain a decisive competitive advantage. Industry representatives highlighted the sector's potential to grow to USD 50 billion by 2030, driven by a strategic shift from mass production to high value-added manufacturing. New Zealand's rich raw leather resources, combined with India's manufacturing capabilities, offer a strong complementarity that both sides expressed keenness to harness. On the occasion, Both Ministers along with Industry representatives spoke of positioning Agra as a global sourcing destination, an employment engine, and an export powerhouse on the world stage. The interaction also covered the pharmaceutical and medical devices sectors. Industry representatives welcomed the FTA's provisions for faster regulatory access, including acceptance of GMP and GCP inspection reports from comparable international regulators, which will reduce compliance burdens and expedite product approvals for Indian manufacturers. They welcomed the inclusion of a dedicated chapter on Health and Traditional Medicine in the FTA, a first for both the countries recognising AYUSH. Piyush Goyal also touched upon the significant opportunities the Agreement creates in education and talent mobility. The Minister urged industry and stakeholders to actively leverage these provisions, encouraging Indian students and professionals to explore the new pathways the FTA opens, and called upon all to view this Agreement as a gateway to a deeper, people-centred partnership between the two nations. Addressing the gathering, Goyal described the FTA as an opening of both doors and minds, and urged industry to think beyond the ordinary and leverage the full breadth of the Agreement across sectors including pharma, AYUSH, education, sports, tourism and investment. He called upon industry bodies to ensure that its benefits reach every MSME and small enterprise. Mr. Todd McClay reaffirmed that India is a strategic priority for New Zealand and described this as the highest quality FTA New Zealand has concluded. He encouraged businesses on both sides to actively pursue joint ventures, and highlighted significant investment opportunities that New Zealand businesses see in India's growing economy.

PM Modi highlights nuclear milestone, renewable growth and citizen initiatives in 'Mann Ki Baat'

(Capital Information)
New Delhi : Narendra Modi on Sunday addressed the nation in the 133rd episode of his monthly radio programme Mann Ki Baat, highlighting India's progress in nuclear energy, renewable capacity, cultural heritage and grassroots innovation. The Prime Minister described the achievement of criticality at the Fast Breeder Reactor in Kalpakkam, Tamil Nadu, as a significant milestone in India's civil nuclear programme, noting that the reactor has been developed using indigenous technology and will contribute to energy security and industrial growth. He also underscored the country's progress in clean energy, stating that India's wind energy capacity has crossed 56 GW, placing it fourth globally. He credited engineers, youth and leading States such as Gujarat, Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra and Rajasthan for driving this growth. Extending advance greetings to Buddha Purnima, Modi spoke about the enduring relevance of the teachings of Gautam Buddha, emphasising peace, compassion and harmony. He highlighted global efforts to promote these values, including initiatives linking meditation and community well-being. Referring to the Republic Day Beating Retreat ceremony, the Prime Minister said its musical compositions are now available on the WAVES OTT platform, enabling wider public access to performances by the armed forces' bands. Modi also shared examples of conservation efforts across the country, including flamingo habitats in the Rann of Kutch, community-led elephant monitoring initiatives in Uttar Pradesh, and the revival of blackbuck populations in central India. He noted ongoing efforts to protect the Great Indian Bustard through scientific conservation methods. Highlighting citizen-led initiatives, he referred to the growth of the bamboo economy in the Northeast and encouraged participation in the upcoming Digital Census 2027. He also lauded achievements of Indian students and grassroots entrepreneurs contributing to local development. The Prime Minister called upon citizens to contribute to nation-building through small but meaningful actions such as conserving energy, protecting the environment and participating in national programmes, reiterating the collective vision of a developed India.

Students should be made aware of the importance of education : Additional Collector Narsinga Rao

(Capital Information)
Jogulamba Gadwal : Additional Collector Narsinga Rao said that in Jogulamba Gadwal district, which is backward in literacy, the students should inform the people around them about the importance of education and create awareness. A Badi Bata program was organized on Sunday in honor of the welfare week organized as part of the 99-day program of Public Governance Progress Plan. Additional Collector Narsinga Rao participated as the chief guest and flagged off the Badi Bata rally organized with the students of various welfare hostels from Gadwal old bus stand. The students marched ahead displaying placards related to Badibata program and chanting slogans. After the rally reached the old bus stand through Krishnaveni Chowrasta and Rajiv Path, the Additional Collector spoke. He said that our district is lagging behind in literacy and we have to work hard to change the name so that every school child can study. Students are advised to take the responsibility of educating uneducated adults in their free time. He said that the government is providing an opportunity to the students who have stopped in the middle of studying to study universal SSC, Inter and other higher education courses. He said that students who join universal educational institutions have the flexibility to study while doing their work. He said that every man can live without depending on anyone if he studies and he will have courage to face any problems in life. He said that the Badibata program is being conducted on a large scale by publicizing the facilities provided to the students in government educational institutions and hostels. He said that the government will provide mid-day meal facility to intermediate students from this academic year. After explaining the importance of education, officials and students took a pledge.

A Digital Leap in India's Census – Challenges and Way Forward

(Capital Information)
Hyderabad : The foundation of India's future planning—the Census—is undergoing a historic transformation. The introduction of 'Self Enumeration' for the 2027 Census reflects a major step toward a Digital India. Available from April 26 to May 10, this facility allows citizens to fulfill their civic duty from the comfort of their homes. However, as we embrace this digital shift, it is essential to analyze the ground realities, challenges, and the roadmap for success. Bridging the Digital Divide: Inclusion of the Illiterate The primary concern regarding self-enumeration is the accessibility for those who are illiterate or lack digital literacy. How can they navigate a digital portal? The solution lies in a collaborative approach: Educated youth, NGOs, and community leaders must act as 'Digital Volunteers' to assist those who cannot use smartphones. Local administration centers, such as Gram Panchayats and community service centers, should provide free assistance for digital registration. Utilizing toll-free helplines and regional language tutorials can help dispel confusion and encourage participation among all sections of society. Identifying the Loopholes: Technical and Security Concerns Transitioning a massive manual process to a digital platform inevitably brings challenges: Managing traffic from millions of users simultaneously can lead to technical glitches and site crashes. In an era of cyber threats, citizens are naturally concerned about the security of their personal information. Lack of understanding or intentional errors in self-reporting could compromise the quality of the data.

The Path to Resolution The government has integrated a "two-tier verification" system to address these concerns: Self-enumeration is not the final word. After May 11, enumerators will visit every household to verify the self-reported data (via the SE ID). This ensures that mistakes are corrected on the spot. It is important to emphasize that self-enumeration is optional. For those who cannot or choose not to use the digital portal, the traditional door-to-door census will continue as usual, ensuring no citizen is left behind. Conclusion The Census is more than just a head count; it is the blueprint for the nation's welfare schemes and resource allocation. While technology simplifies the process, its success depends on the balance between digital innovation and grassroots inclusion. By addressing technical loopholes and ensuring public awareness, the 2027 Census can become a milestone in governance, reflecting a truly modern and inclusive India. Polagoni Saidu Senior Journalist

Self-Enumeration Drive for Census 2027 Launched in Nagarkurnool; Public Urged to Register Online by May 10

(Capital Information)
Nagarkurnool : The Self-Enumeration (Self-Counting) process for Census 2027 was formally launched in Nagarkurnool district by District Collector Hemant Keshav Patil and Superintendent of Police Dr. Sangram Singh G. Patil on Sunday. As part of the Census process, both the Collector and SP personally registered their details through the official online portal, setting an example for the public. The government has introduced a digital self-enumeration system, enabling citizens to independently submit their personal and family details through the website: <https://se.census.gov.in>. Speaking on the occasion, Collector Hemant Keshav Patil emphasized that every citizen should responsibly participate in this crucial exercise. He stated that accurate data provided by citizens would help the government in formulating effective development plans. He further noted that the digital self-enumeration system has been introduced to ensure the process is simple, comprehensive, and transparent. The Collector informed that citizens can register their details either through the web portal or a mobile application. The self-enumeration drive will continue from April 26 to May 10, and all households in the district are urged to complete their registration within this period. He assured that assistance would be available at village and ward levels for those who lack internet access. He appealed to all residents not to miss this opportunity and actively participate in the process. He also highlighted that accurate census data would play a vital role in the effective implementation of welfare schemes, infrastructure development, and resource allocation in the future. Superintendent of Police Dr. Sangram Singh G. Patil also urged citizens to make full use of the digital self-enumeration facility and ensure that their details are recorded honestly. He assured that the government is committed to safeguarding personal data and privacy. He added that officials from all departments are working in coordination to ensure the success of the program, and public cooperation is essential. On this occasion, the Collector and SP also unveiled an awareness poster indicating the completion of self-enumeration. The poster is designed for households to display at their homes after completing the process, which will help create awareness and encourage others who have not yet registered to participate.

Self-Efficacy: Why Students Must Train Their Minds to Excel

(Capital Information)
Hyderabad : In classrooms across the country, a familiar pattern unfolds. A student pauses midway through a difficult problem, hesitates, and quietly withdraws—not because the problem is beyond reach, but because a conclusion has already been formed: this is not for me. This quiet retreat, repeated over time, shapes academic outcomes far more than intelligence alone. At a moment when academic competition is intensifying and students are expected to navigate increasingly complex learning demands, the question is no longer just what students know—but what they believe they are capable of learning. Psychology offers a powerful lens to understand this. The concept of self-efficacy, introduced by Albert Bandura, refers to an individual's belief in their ability to organize and execute the actions required to achieve specific goals. Decades of research in cognitive and behavioral science suggest that students who develop this belief are more likely to persist through difficulty, adapt their strategies, and ultimately perform better academically. The implication is both simple and profound: students do not fail only because content is difficult; they often disengage because they do not believe they can improve. This is where the role of unstructured time—particularly summer vacation—becomes critical. For many, it is treated as a break from academic effort. Yet in reality, it represents one of the few periods where learning can occur without immediate evaluation. Used well, it can come a turning point. Used passively, it can widen existing gaps. A more effective approach begins with a shift in mindset. Instead of asking how much of the syllabus can be covered, students must begin by asking how deeply concepts can be understood. This shift—from completion to comprehension—is foundational to building self-efficacy. In practical terms, this requires a deliberate restructuring of study habits. Mornings, when cognitive focus is naturally higher, should be reserved for the most challenging subjects. Rather than passive reading, students should engage actively—solving problems without immediate reference to answers, identifying errors, and revisiting them until clarity emerges. It is in this process, often marked by initial frustration, that genuine understanding is built. Afternoons can then be visible. At the end of each day, students should be able to point to specific outcomes—problems solved, concepts clarified, or doubts resolved. Such tangible evidence reinforces the belief that improvement is possible, which in turn fuels further effort. Weekly reflection adds another layer of effectiveness. By reviewing what has improved, what remains unclear, and where effort has been inconsistent, students can adjust their approach with precision rather than relying on unfocused hard work. Underlying all of this is a simple but often overlooked principle: consistency matters more than intensity. A few hours of focused daily effort, sustained over time, is far more effective than irregular bursts of study. Learning, after all, is cumulative. Perhaps the most important shift, however, lies in how students interpret difficulty. A low score or a confusing concept is often seen as a sign of limitation. But students with strong self-efficacy interpret these moments differently—as feedback rather than failure. This subtle shift transforms obstacles into opportunities for targeted improvement. There will, inevitably, be moments of resistance—the impulse to delay, to disengage, to postpone effort. These moments are not exceptions; they are part of the process. The difference lies in response. Progress is shaped not by the absence of such resistance, but by the decision to act despite it. As the academic year resumes, the visible outcomes of such an approach—improved performance, greater clarity, and increased confidence—will become evident.

But the deeper transformation is internal. Students begin to approach challenges not with hesitation, but with a method. They no longer ask, "Am I capable of this?" They begin to ask, "What is required to master this?" In an education system that often emphasizes results, cultivating this mindset may be one of the most important investments a student can make. Because in the long run, excellence is not simply achieved—it is built, through belief, effort, and the disciplined willingness to continue learning. About the Author : Fazlur Rahman is an educator and writer focused on student learning, cognitive development, and academic performance. Census 2027: Self-Enumeration Begins in Nalgonda; Mayor Calls for Public Participation

(Capital Information)
Nalgonda : As part of the nationwide Census 2027 program, the self-enumeration process was launched today in Nalgonda town. On this occasion, under the supervision of the Municipal Commissioner, Assistant City Planner Krishnaveni and Town Planning & Building Officer Abdul Rahman visited the residence of Mayor Burri Chaitanya Srinivas Reddy and conducted the self-enumeration process.

The Mayor personally registered her family details and urged all residents of Nalgonda to make use of this facility without fail. She stated that the self-enumeration process will be conducted from April 26, 2026, to May 10, 2026, and advised every household to complete their registration within this period.

She emphasized that future welfare schemes and benefits implemented by the Central Government will depend on census data, highlighting the importance of this survey.

Later, the Commissioner visited the residence of Deputy Mayor Ashraf Ali Mohammad and completed the self-enumeration process there as well. He appealed to the public to voluntarily participate in the process and cooperate with the government.

Subsequently, the officials visited the residences of Division No. 47 Corporator Abbagoni Kavitha and Division No. 40 Corporator Boddupalli Lakshmi, where the self-enumeration process was also carried out. The corporators completed their registrations and informed the public that the process is simple and quick, encouraging everyone to participate.

Meanwhile, ward officials are visiting the residences of corporators in their respective areas and conducting the self-enumeration process.

They are also creating awareness among the public and taking steps to ensure that every household completes the registration within the stipulated time.

Officials stated that citizens can complete the process online from their homes in just five minutes. After completing the registration, they are advised to save the reference number and provide it to the enumerator who visits their home.

Municipal Commissioner

B. Sharath Chandra said that for any doubts regarding the self-enumeration process, citizens can contact the municipal office. He urged all residents of Nalgonda to actively participate and make the program a success.

The program was attended by the Assistant City Planner, Town Planning & Building Officer, Sanitary Inspector N. Pradeep Reddy, Revenue Officer Shivaram Reddy, and concerned ward officials.

Collector Orders Immediate Procurement of Quality Paddy

(Capital Information)

Nalgonda : District Collector B. Chandrasekar has instructed officials to ensure that paddy arriving at procurement centers with proper quality standards is purchased immediately and dispatched to rice mills without delay.

On Sunday, the Collector conducted surprise inspections at paddy procurement centers at G. Chennaram, SLBC Market Yard near the district headquarters, and Lallayiguda. He examined key quality parameters such as moisture content, impurities, and grain condition. He also checked weighing machines, records, and facilities like shade and drinking water provided for farmers.

Interacting with farmers and procurement staff, the Collector directed that only paddy meeting the required standards—free from excessive moisture and impurities—should be procured promptly. He strictly instructed that good quality and substandard grain should not be mixed and must be sent to mills separately.

He further emphasized that there should be no delays in procurement or transportation of paddy to mills and directed officials to report any issues immediately.

Do Not Paste Posters on Dividers and Flyover Walls: Municipal Chairperson Kusuma Babu Warns

(Capital Information)

Kodad : Municipal Chairperson Erneni Kusuma Venkata Ratnam Babu has warned people against pasting posters on road dividers and flyover walls in the town.

She stated that, as part of the town beautification programme, attractive colors and paintings were created on central dividers and flyover walls along the main roads. However, she expressed concern that some individuals have recently been pasting various posters over these paintings, damaging their appearance.

She emphasized that such actions spoil the aesthetic beauty of the town and warned that legal action would be taken against those responsible. The Chairperson appealed to the public to cooperate in maintaining and enhancing the town's beautification efforts.

Actress Ashu Reddy Booked in Alleged ₹9.83 Crore Cheating Case

(Capital Information)

Hyderabad : In a sensational case, the Central Crime Station (CCS) of Hyderabad has registered a non-bailable case against film actress Ashu Reddy and her family members for allegedly cheating a software engineer of nearly ₹9.83 crore under the pretext of marriage.

According to police, the victim, Dharmendra, a software engineer currently residing in London, was allegedly lured into a relationship with promises of marriage. The accused reportedly gained his trust over time and persuaded him to spend huge amounts on gold, property, and other expenses.

As per the complaint, Ashu Reddy allegedly convinced Dharmendra to purchase around five kilograms of gold and also took advance money for a villa worth approximately ₹3 crore, citing the need for a residence after marriage. It is further alleged that both families even consulted astrologer Venu Swamy, strengthening the victim's belief that the marriage would take place.

Police said that Dharmendra continued to provide money and assets as demanded, believing in the marriage proposal. However, the accused later reportedly refused to go ahead with the marriage. When the victim demanded either marriage or return of his money, no action was taken by the accused.

Following this, Dharmendra's father, Satyanarayana Murthy, approached the Hyderabad

CCS and lodged a formal complaint. He alleged that his son was "honey-trapped" and cheated systematically by the actress and her family.

The complaint further stated that after initially calling off the marriage and failing to return the money, the accused allegedly renewed the promise of marriage and cheated the victim a second time. Apart from the major transactions, Dharmendra is also said to have given ₹50 lakh to Ashu Reddy's sister, Divya Reddy.

The victim's family also alleged that instead of returning the money, the accused issued threats of filing counter cases. It is further claimed that Ashu Reddy, along with her boyfriend Jayanth, orchestrated the entire plan.

Based on the complaint, CCS police have registered a case against Ashu Reddy and her family members under Sections 318(4) read with 3(5) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS). Investigation is currently underway.

Sports Authority Summer Coaching Camps in Full Swing Summer coaching camps across 33 districts until June 7

(P V Ramana Rao)

(Capital Information)

Hyderabad : Under the supervision of the Telangana Sports Authority, Annual summer coaching camps that began on April 24 are being conducted until June 6 in all stadiums across the twin cities and in 33 districts. The authority stated that these camps have received an overwhelming response from young athletes. In the twin cities alone, more than 2,000 participants have already registered so far through online and are actively taking part.

These camps are being successfully held at major venues such as Gachibowli Stadium, LB Stadium, Gymkhana Grounds, Saroor Nagar Indoor Stadium, Yusufguda KVBR Indoor Stadium, Osmania University Cycling Velodrome, and Husain Sagar Water Sports Training Center.

For nearly four decades, the Sports Authority has been organizing summer coaching camps, identifying and nurturing many talented athletes.

Renowned sportspersons like Sania Mirza, Saina Nehwal, Mithali Raj, Mohammad Azharuddin, and Pullela Gopichand received their early training through such initiatives.

Officials stated that these camps not only promote physical health through sports but also contribute to mental development, encouraging students to stay away from excessive mobile phone use, online games, and computers during summer holidays.

Compared to many private coaching centers, the Sports Authority provides high-quality training at affordable fees, with experienced coaches and international-standard facilities, making it accessible to middle-class families.

To encourage interest in sports, the camps are designed to attract not only students but also their parents. Free yoga and Zumba training sessions are being offered to parents. These programs received tremendous response last year and are being continued this year as well.

This year, more sports disciplines are being included than before. Additionally, unlike previous years when camps were limited to district headquarters, they are now being extended to several town-level centers.

The honorarium for assistant coaches has been increased from last year to encourage experienced sportspersons to participate as trainers. Students and aspiring athletes are encouraged to register online for these camps. The collected data will also be used for future sports development initiatives.

Encouraging Youth Towards Sports

As per the directions of Chief Minister Revanth Reddy and Sports Minister Vakiti Srihari, these camps are being conducted on a large scale to promote sports, especially among rural youth. Sports Authority Chairman Shivasena Reddy stated that arrangements have been made to ensure maximum participation from students and young athletes. He added that participant data is being systematically recorded, along with details of assistant coaches.

He further explained that due to the Telangana government's sports promotion policies, awareness about sports is increasing among students, which is why these camps are receiving such a strong response.

"Values are as Important as Marks": Malkajgiri MP Eatata Rajender at Unified Council Awards

(Capital Information)

Medchal Makajgiri Bureau : Malkajgiri MP Eatata Rajender emphasized that true pride lies not in achieving a hundred percent marks, but in growing up with culture and integrity. He was speaking as the Chief Guest at the Unified Council Awards ceremony held at Ravindra Bharathi.

Nurturing Creativity through Olympiads

The MP lauded the Unified Council and its head, Mr. Srinivas Rao, for conducting Olympiad exams for over 10 lakh students to identify and nurture their innate creativity. He noted that moving away from the traditional "rote learning" (batti) method to a creative approach is essential for a student's true development.

The Future is in the Classroom

Citing visionaries like Kothari, Abdul Kalam, and Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Eatata Rajender remarked, "The future of the nation is shaped within the four walls of a classroom. The intellectual wealth of our students is what propels the country forward." He also paid tribute to Savitribai Phule, noting that her struggles paved the way for girls to pursue education today.

India's Rise in the Global Economy

The MP highlighted India's rapid economic growth, stating that the nation is currently the fourth-largest economy in the world. He mentioned that PM Modi is striving to bring India to the third position—a pace of development that is drawing the attention and envy of other nations. He stressed that without a focus on research and innovation, the country cannot progress.

Technology for Human Welfare

Referencing historical events, he noted that while Otto Hahn developed nuclear technology for atomic energy, he never intended for it to lead to the tragedies of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

"Technology should be used for the welfare of the people, not for destruction," he said, reiterating India's core philosophy of 'Sarve Jana Sukhino Bhavantu' (May all people be happy).

A Message to Parents

Eatata Rajender made an earnest appeal to parents: "It is not just about the marks. It is about raising children with culture. Values must be taught alongside academics. The peace we want to see in the country must begin within our own homes."

Conclusion

He congratulated the award-winning teachers, educational institutions, and students, wishing for the prosperity of families and, through them, the growth of the nation. The event was attended by Sudhakar Gande, Srinivas Rao, K.V. Pradeep, Kalluri Srinivas, and other dignitaries.
